ABOUT

YOUR SPEAKER

Diana Morris is a clarity coach, speaker, and writer committed to helping people make the most of the life they have been gifted.

Before dedicating her work full-time to coaching and speaking, Diana earned her M.Ed. from Vanderbilt University and her B.A. from Boston College and spent nearly a decade as an administrator at top institutions such as Vanderbilt and Tulane University.

Through her signature Define, Align, Decide framework, 1:1 programs, workshops, presentations, & online courses, Diana has guided hundreds of clients and students to find the clarity and certainty they need to create fulfillment in all areas of their life including work, home, and their relationships with themselves and others. Her specialty lies in providing high-impact, thought-provoking questions that leave room for individuals to find the answers that move them closer towards the version of themselves that is real and true, regardless of the external and self-imposed pressures and expectations they may face.

The Clarity Workbook: A Step-by-Step Guide to Getting What You Really Want

What do you want?

What if there was a way to answer that question without any hesitation, regardless of what was happening around you?

That's where clarity comes in.

It's not enough to just know that things are happening to us—living life to the fullest requires us to be able to make meaning of our current circumstances, our previous experiences, and all the moments to come, even in times of uncertainty and change.

With guided activities, reflection prompts, and more, this workbook is designed to help.

Lachesis' Allotment: A Short Collection of Notes, Observations, Questions, and Thoughts

In Greek mythology, Lachesis (lack-eh-sis) allots each of us a length of thread to weave with as we will.

This hybrid collection of short essays and screenplay explores the nature of friendship and our relationships with the people in our lives over time.

From the friendships we form in childhood to the adult friendships we form with our parents—even after they're gone—this work weaves together memory, meditations on making our dreams a reality, and the evolving nature of our connections as we knot our strands together or unravel the knitting we've achieved.

“So thankful for you! I had so many “light bulb” moments during your presentation. You are so clear, concise, and open, which allowed me to really dig deep... I know I'll be reflecting for weeks to come.” - Madeleine, Event Attendee

“One of the best things about working with Diana is I felt that she really listened to the goals we were trying to achieve, understood the various identities of our group, and tailored her workshops to be more relatable... I appreciated that she doesn't just take the “one size fits all approach”, but rather, it was clear she intended to provide a workshop that was more in line with our needs.” Samantha, Ithaca College

“Diana, it was incredible. Still processing everything that was shared. It was the most digestible and thoughtful guidance I've received about finding purpose and setting intentions. And I've spent A LOT of money on therapy. THANK YOU for this opportunity.” - Hannah, Event Attendee

“Thanks so much for sharing your talents with our community. Haven spoken to a few participants, they found your session incredible enriching. Following the workshop they said, “Now the real work begins!” They left with purpose and inspiration.” - Jabari & Devin, The Teachers' Lounge
